Academic Costume

In the medieval universities, students and teachers wore gowns indicating their status and scholastic achievements. European institutions still show great diversity in the specifications of academic dress, but American colleges and universities preferred to adopt some definite system which all could follow. Accordingly, in 1895, at Columbia University, an intercollegiate commission drafted a uniform code for the use of caps, gowns and hoods. These standards, with few revisions, are still in effect. Junior College of Broward County will follow the Academic Costume Code.

Four academic degrees are generally recognized: the associate, the bachelor, the master, and the doctor. The associate degrees (associate in arts and associate in sciences) are offered by the standard two-year junior colleges. The other three are conferred by universities and colleges. The bachelor's, or baccalaureate, degree takes its name directly from the medieval practice of "bachelors" wearing a garland of bayberries. The master's degree was equivalent to a license to teach, and sometimes was followed by the express words Licentia Docendi. The doctor's degree was originally a title of respect, and a recognition of great learning. Today, the doctor's degree when earned by study indicates advanced study and independent research in a specialized field of learning. Honorary degrees are granted for meritorious service and for distinction in public or private endeavor.

Those holding a bachelor's degree wear a black gown fastened at the top, and distinguished by long pointed sleeves hanging nearly to the knees. The master's gown, worn open, has long closed sleeves with an arc of a circle appearing near the bottom and a slit for the arm near the middle of the sleeves. The doctor's gown, usually worn open, is made of silk, faced with a broad strip of velvet, and has three bars of velvet on each sleeve.

A hood made of the same material may be worn with the gown. The bachelor's hood is three feet long, with a two-inch strip of velvet; the master's hood is three and one-half feet long, faced with a three-inch strip of velvet; the doctor's hood is four feet long, faced with a five-inch strip of velvet. The color of the tassel or the velvet strip on the hood indicates the field of study in which the degree was earned or granted, as for example: ARTS, white; SCIENCE, golden yellow; EDUCATION light blue; MUSIC, pink; LIBRARY SCHOOL, lemon yellow; BUSINESS, drab; JOURNALISM, Crimson; LAW, purple; THEOLOGY, scarlet; PHILOSOPHY, dark blue. Each hood is also lined in silk with the colors of the institution which granted the degree, as for example, garnet and gold for Florida State University, orange and blue for the University of Florida.

The appropriate cap for all degrees is the familiar black "mortar board." A tassel, black or a color signifying the field of specialization, is worn hanging to the left of the face. Those holding a doctor's degree may wear a soft velvet cap of the color indicating their field of study, or, with the mortar board, may wear a tassel in whole or in part of gold thread.

The mace, carried by the parade marshal, is a symbol of the authority vested in the college president. In medieval times, it was a weapon of war which was effective against the strongest armor and was used chiefly by knights. Maces were often borne by a royal bodyguard to protect the king in processions, but in the course of time (by the 14th century) they assumed more ceremonial functions and lost their warlike appearance. A mace is carried in academic and ecclesiastical processions, particularly in English-speaking countries.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the Advisory Committee of the Junior College of Broward County was created for the purpose of providing guidance and counsel to the College; and

WHEREAS, the members of this Committee have devoted a vast amount of time and effort to consideration of matters relating to the Junior College; and

WHEREAS, these members, being especially sensitive to the educational needs of the community, have effectively interpreted those needs to the Superintendent, the Board of Public Instruction, and to the President of the Junior College; and

WHEREAS, the outstanding leadership and sound counsel provided by these members have resulted in the development of an institution of higher education that is widely recognized as an innovator and leader among the nation's junior colleges:

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the President of the Junior College of Broward County, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the members of the Broward County Board of Public Instruction, do hereby express to each member of the Advisory Committee of the Junior College, sincere appreciation for the time and effort expended and for the excellent leadership provided in bringing the Junior College to its enviable position of eminence.

Given at Fort Lauderdale, Florida, this third day of August, 1965.

FLORENCE MARGARET TUSTISON is the mother of two grown sons and the wife of Fort Lauderdale dentist Dr. Harry W. Tustison. She was born in New York City and attended high school and college in Ohio. After earning her Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees from the University of Toledo she did further graduate study at the University of Guadalajara in Mexico. Mrs. Tustison has been a school teacher in Ohio and Michigan and since coming to Fort Lauderdale in 1947, she has engaged in a distinguished career of public service. She is the past President of the local American Association of University Women, the Children's Rehabilitative Services, and the Visiting Nurses Association. She is the past state chairman of the committee on the Status of Women, and for eight years she has served on the board of the Fort Lauderdale public library. In 1953, Mrs. Tustison was named "Woman of Achievement" by the Business and Professional Women of Miami, and that same year she was elected to the Fort Lauderdale City Commission for a two-year term.

LLOYD C. CASSELS, a fourth generation Floridian, is President of the insurance firm of Bateman, Cassels and Gordon. He is also Executive Vice-President of Bateman and Company, realtors, and a Director of the First National Bank of North Broward County. He was born in Plant City, Florida, and attended Plant City High School and the University of Florida. He graduated from the American Business College in Lakeland. He is the past President of the Pompano Beach Kiwanis Club, the Pompano Beach Chamber of Commerce and the Pompano Beach-Deerfield Beach Board of Realtors. In 1963, he received the initial "Man of the Year" award from the First Baptist Church of Pompano Beach. Mr. Cassels and his wife, Emily, are the parents of two married daughters.

ROBERT E. FERRIS, Attorney, is a partner in the law firm of McCune, Hiaassen, Crum, and Ferris. He grew up in Chicago. He received his A.B. degree from the University of Illinois in 1939 and two years later he earned a Bachelor of Laws degree at Illinois. Ferris, a Lt. Colonel, U.S. Army Retired Reserve, came to Fort Lauderdale after World War II service. He is a former Chairman of the Broward County Board of Public Instruction and is presently on the Plantation Zoning Board and Chairman of the Board of the South Florida Education Center. Mr. Ferris and his wife, Jane, are the parents of two sons and a daughter.

JOHN H. PAYNE, Attorney and Chairman of the Board of Fisher-Payne Construction Company, Inc., was born in Saratoga Springs, New York. He attended public schools in New York and prior to entering the Army Air Force in World War II he attended Green Mountain College in Vermont. During the war he was a four-engine aircraft commander and shortly after the war he came to Florida and became the chief pilot of Broward Aviation, Inc. During this period he majored in management at the University of Miami School of Business. He later entered the University of Miami School of Law where he earned his L.L.B. degree in 1953. He is the President of the Wilton Manors Rotary Club and he is a member of the Board of Adjustment of the city of Fort Lauderdale. He is the past chairman of the Fort Lauderdale Planning and Zoning Board and the past President of the Board of the Children's Home Society of Broward County. Mr. Payne and his wife, Barbara, have three children.

JUDSON SAMUELS, Attorney for the Florida State Racing Commission, is the former City Attorney of Hollywood, Florida. He was born and raised in Chicago. He attended the University of Illinois, and in 1933 he earned a Bachelor of Science and Law degree from the Northwestern University College of Law. During World War II he was Area Director of some twenty-four Selective Service Boards. He came to Florida in 1946 and a year later he earned a second law degree (L.L.B.) from the University of Miami. For twelve years thereafter he was the attorney and one of the principle founders of the South Broward Hospital District. Mr. Samuels and his wife, Bernice, are the parents of two sons and a daughter.

ACADEMIC COSTUME

In the medieval universities, students and teachers wore gowns indicating their status and scholastic achievements. European institutions still show great diversity in the specifications of academic dress, but American colleges and universities preferred to adopt some definite system which all could follow. Accordingly in 1895, at Columbia University, an intercollegiate commission drafted a uniform code for the use of caps, gowns and hoods. These standards, with few revisions, are still in effect. Junior College of Broward County will follow the Academic Costume Code.

Four academic degrees are generally recognized: the associate, the bachelor, the master, and the doctor. The associate degrees (associate in arts and associate in sciences) are offered by the standard two-year junior colleges. The other three are conferred by universities and colleges. The bachelor's, or baccalaureate, degree takes its name directly from the medieval practice of "bachelors" wearing a garland of bayberries. The master's degree was equivalent to a license to teach, and sometimes was followed by the express words Licentia Docendi. The doctor's degree was originally a title of respect, and a recognition of great learning. Today, the doctor's degree when earned by study indicates advanced study and independent research in a specialized field of learning. Honorary degrees are granted for meritorious service and for distinction in public or private endeavor.

Those holding a bachelor's degree wear a black gown fastened at the top, and distinguished by long pointed sleeves hanging nearly to the knees. The master's gown, worn open, has long closed sleeves with an arc of a circle appearing near the bottom and a slit for the arm near the middle of the sleeves. The doctor's gown, usually worn open, is made of silk, faced with a broad strip of velvet, and has three bars of velvet on each sleeve.

A hood made of the same material may be worn with the gown. The bachelor's hood is three feet long, with a two-inch strip of velvet; the master's hood is three and one-half feet long, faced with a three-inch strip of velvet; the doctor's hood is four feet long, faced with a five-inch strip of velvet. The color of the tassel or the velvet strip on the hood indicates the field of study in which the degree was earned or granted, as for example: ARTS, white; SCIENCE, golden yellow; EDUCATION light blue; MUSIC, pink; LIBRARY SCHOOL, lemon yellow; BUSINESS, drab; JOURNALISM, crimson; LAW, purple; THEOLOGY, scarlet; PHILOSOPHY, dark blue. Each hood is also lined in silk with the colors of the institution which granted the degree, as for example, garnet and gold for Florida State University, orange and blue for the University of Florida.

The appropriate cap for all degrees is the familiar black "mortar board." A tassel, black or a color signifying the field of specialization, is worn hanging to the left of the face. Those holding a doctor's degree may wear a soft velvet cap of the color indicating their field of study, or, with the mortar board, may wear a tassel in whole or in part of gold thread.

The mace, carried by the parade marshal, is a symbol of the authority vested in the college president. In medieval times, it was a weapon of war which was effective against the strongest armor and was used chiefly by knights. Maces were often borne by a royal bodyguard to protect the king in processions, but in the course of time (by the 14th century) they assumed more ceremonial functions and lost their warlike appearance. A mace is carried in academic and ecclesiastical processions, particularly in English-speaking countries.

ACADEMIC COSTUME

In the medieval universities, students and teachers wore gowns indicating their status and scholastic achievements. European institutions still show great diversity in the specifications of academic dress, but American colleges and universities preferred to adopt some definite system which all could follow. Accordingly in 1895, at Columbia University, an intercollegiate commission drafted a uniform code for the use of caps, gowns and hoods. These standards, with few revisions, are still in effect. Junior College of Broward County will follow the Academic Costume Code.

Four academic degrees are generally recognized: the associate, the bachelor, the master, and the doctor. The associate degrees (associate in arts and associate in sciences) are offered by the standard two-year junior colleges. The other three are conferred by universities and colleges. The bachelor's, or baccalaureate, degree takes its name directly from the medieval practice of "bachelors" wearing a garland of bayberries. The master's degree was equivalent to a license to teach, and sometimes was followed by the express words Licentia Docendi. The doctor's degree was originally a title of respect, and a recognition of great learning. Today, the doctor's degree when earned by study indicates advanced study and independent research in a specialized field of learning. Honorary degrees are granted for meritorious service and for distinction in public or private endeavor.

Those holding a bachelor's degree wear a black gown fastened at the top, distinguished by long pointed sleeves hanging nearly to the knees. The master's gown, worn open, has long closed sleeves with an arc of a circle appearing near the bottom and a slit for the arm near the middle of the sleeves. The doctor's gown, usually worn open, is made of silk, faced with a broad strip of velvet, and has three bars of velvet on each sleeve.

A hood made of the same material may be worn with the gown. The bachelor's hood is three feet long, with a two-inch strip of velvet; the master's hood is three and one-half feet long, faced with a three-inch strip of velvet; the doctor's hood is four feet long, faced with a five-inch strip of velvet. The color of the tassel or the velvet strip on the hood indicates the field of study in which the degree was earned or granted, as for example: ARTS, white; SCIENCE, golden yellow; EDUCATION light blue; MUSIC, pink; LIBRARY SCHOOL, lemon yellow; BUSINESS, drab; JOURNALISM, crimson; LAW, purple; THEOLOGY, scarlet; PHILOSOPHY, dark blue. Each hood is also lined in silk with the colors of the institution which granted the degree, as for example, garnet and gold for Florida State University, orange and blue for the University of Florida.

The appropriate cap for all degrees is the familiar black "mortar board." A tassel, black or a color signifying the field of specialization, is worn hanging to the left of the face. Those holding a doctor's degree may wear a soft velvet cap of the color indicating their field of study, or, with the mortar board, may wear a tassel in whole or in part of gold thread.

The mace, carried by the parade marshal, is a symbol of the authority vested in the college president. In medieval times, it was a weapon of war which was effective against the strongest armor and was used chiefly by knights. Maces were often borne by a royal bodyguard to protect the king in processions, but in the course of time (by the 14th century) they assumed more ceremonial functions and lost their warlike appearance. A mace is carried in academic and ecclesiastical processions, particularly in English-speaking countries.

ACADEMIC COSTUME

In the medieval universities, students and teachers wore gowns indicating their status and scholastic achievements. European institutions still show great diversity in the specifications of academic dress, but American colleges and universities preferred to adopt some definite system which all could follow. Accordingly in 1895, at Columbia University, an intercollegiate commission drafted a uniform code for the use of caps, gowns and hoods. These standards, with few revisions, are still in effect. Broward County Junior College will follow the Academic Costume Code.

Four academic degrees are generally recognized: the associate, the bachelor, the master, and the doctor. The associate degrees (associate in arts and associate in sciences) are offered by the standard two-year junior colleges. The other three are conferred by universities and colleges. The bachelor's, or baccalaureate, degree takes its name directly from the medieval practice of "bachelors" wearing a garland of bayberries. The master's degree was equivalent to a license to teach, and sometimes was followed by the express words Licentia Docendi. The doctor's degree was originally a title of respect, and a recognition of great learning. Today, the doctor's degree when earned by study indicates advanced study and independent research in a specialized field of learning. Honorary degrees are granted for meritorious service and for distinction in public or private endeavor.

Those holding a bachelor's degree wear a black gown fastened at the top, distinguished by long pointed sleeves hanging nearly to the knees. The master's gown, worn open, has long closed sleeves with an arc of a circle appearing near the bottom and a slit for the arm near the middle of the sleeves. The doctor's gown, usually worn open, is made of silk, faced with a broad strip of velvet, and has three bars of velvet on each sleeve.

A hood made of the same material may be worn with the gown. The bachelor's hood is three feet long, with a two-inch strip of velvet; the master's hood is three and one-half feet long, faced with a three-inch strip of velvet; the doctor's hood is four feet long, faced with a five-inch strip of velvet. The color of the tassel or the velvet strip on the hood indicates the field of study in which the degree was earned or granted, as for example: ARTS, white; SCIENCE, golden yellow; EDUCATION light blue; MUSIC, pink; LIBRARY SCHOOL, lemon yellow; BUSINESS, drab; JOURNALISM, crimson; LAW, purple; THEOLOGY, scarlet; PHILOSOPHY, dark blue. Each hood is also lined in silk with the colors of the institution which granted the degree, as for example, garnet and gold for Florida State University, orange and blue for the University of Florida.

The appropriate cap for all degrees is the familiar black "mortar board." A tassel, black or a color signifying the field of specialization, is worn hanging to the left of the face. Those holding a doctor's degree may wear a soft velvet cap of the color indicating their field of study, or with the mortar board, may wear a tassel in whole or in part of gold thread.

The mace, carried by the parade marshal, is a symbol of the authority vested in the college president. In medieval times, it was a weapon of war which was effective against the strongest armor and was used chiefly by knights. Maces were often borne by a royal bodyguard to protect the king in processions, but in the course of time (by the 14th century) they assumed more ceremonial functions and lost their warlike appearance. A mace is carried in academic and ecclesiastical processions, particularly in English-speaking countries.
